We responded to an ambulance call involving a toddler having a seizure and possibly not breathing. There were several adults and two additional children in the home at the time. The adults were somewhat hysterical and this caused the other children in the home to become very upset. I gave them some of the Reach a Child books and they were thrilled. The books gave them something else to focus their attention on and they calmed down almost immediately. The mother was also very thankful and appreciative. I had contact with the mother several days later and she told me how much the children loved the books.
